

SIGI 3

Discovering who you are and what you do best can be a difficult and frustrating task especially when it comes to deciding what you are going to do with your life. But this is not a task you need to face alone. Here at the University of Dubai (UD) we have the SIGI 3 to help you in your self discovery.

How can it help you decide on a career?

SIGI3 can help you examine your work-related values, interests, and skills systematically through self-assessment. Once you enter your own preferences, the program searches its built-in library and finds those careers that most closely match your preferences. It can save you literally days of leafing through catalogs and career books, and because its built-in library is so large, it may well find career options you never knew existed.

What does SIGI3 include?

SIGI3 consists of several core sections: Starting, Assessments, Occupational Information, Analysis, and Getting There (see User's Guide for full details). Each section covers important aspects of the career planning and decision-making process. A new Top Picks panel acts as a Portfolio for accumulating the information you gather throughout SIGI3. Since people have different goals, you may find some sections more useful than others. SIGI3 has an activity to help you choose the path through the system that's best for you. Each occupation is fully up-to-date with the latest information on:

- Definition and Description - work activities, typical job titles/specialties/military, work settings-indoor/outdoor, special problems/satisfactions
- Education and Training – academic course examples, specific occupational training, personal qualifications, required skills, experience, other requirements
- Personal Satisfactions - contribution to society, leadership, prestige, leisure, independence, variety, interest fields
- Opportunities - current employment outlook, where employed, job security, advancement
- List of resources for more information – website links, books, journals, etc.

What are the benefits of SIGI3?

- Access 24/7 from any PC on or off-campus
- Self-directed, flexible, and easy-to-use. You take charge of your own career decision making. Use the program all at once or a section at a time. Come back as often as you like. Try different scenarios and choices until it feels right.
- Saves your work in SIGI3 for your future use.
- Saves you money, time, and energy. SIGI3 takes the guesswork and frustration out of career and educational planning by providing an easy step-by-step process.

How do I access SIGI3?

SIGI3 is exclusively provided for the students of UD for free. SIGI3 is a restricted access link that can be accessed through the Internship & Career Development Center (ICDC) SIGI3 web site. Students need to sign-up at the ICDC for personal account creation and will have the ability to later change their login password.

How to Use SIGI3

1. If you have your access code, click here to log in to Sigi3
2. Enter your account name and password assigned by the ICDC.
3. Log in and utilize the program at your own pace. Take the self-assessment, see how Sigi3 relates that to career choice and major programs or explore hundreds of occupations.
4. We also recommend that you schedule a counseling appointment with the ICDC. We are here to help you talk through any questions or concerns you may have, provide direction on resources and assist you in developing a plan of action in your search for a major or career.
- 5- Sigi3 is also taught at the BBUS 115-Career Exploration Course offered at UD
